

CLT IN HOUSE

For lawyers and non-lawyers

The Business Development Programme for your Firm

Stay ahead of the game in tough times

“The business critical skills needed by all lawyers to stay ahead in an uncertain economic climate”

The Business Development Programme

CLT would like to introduce you to our brand new business development programme specifically designed for the legal profession.

Programme Structure

It takes place over twelve months, each module is a “short day” running from 10.00am to 4.00pm allowing a “top and tailing” of the working day.

Ideally each individual attends all six modules however single modules can be attended as a stand-alone course. There is a minimum of six participants per module and a maximum of twelve. They are delivered in-house and can be tailored specifically to your firm.

Training Methods

The sessions will be a facilitative style, offering lots of practical input from participants with the use of exercises, role-plays and relative business simulations. A selection of these will be videoed and played back to provide real time coaching plus identifying areas for further development and for self analysis purposes.

Personal Action Plan

Every delegate will produce a personal action plan of what they will commit to doing differently back at work. Each module will contain a review of the previous with individual input as to what has been achieved, what has worked well and why, plus trainer assistance with any outstanding issues from their action plan. This approach enables individuals to transfer the learning into the workplace and provides evidence of learning plus reviews throughout the programme. Delegates have telephone access to their trainer for additional coaching between modules, should it be required.

What does it look like?

The programme focuses on 6 key learning modules:

1. Networking for Lawyers
